DETAILED ACTION

This action is in response to Applicant's remarks and amendments received on 1/14/2010. Based on the Applicant's amendments and the discussion with the Applicant's representative during an interview on December 28, 2009, all pending claims are allowed.

Examiner's Amendment

On June 7, 2010, at around 3pm, the Applicant's Attorney, Raj Balusa, gave permission to the Examiner to cancel the withdrawn claims: 12-27, 35, 37-39 and 40-42.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 1, 4-11, 31, 33, 34 and 43 are allowed. Claim 1 has incorporated the language of claims 2 and 3 and is now allowable for the reasons given below.

Claim 1 discloses a method for conducting financial transactions over a network of payment networks that includes the use of an unique identifier with one or more payment addresses; and further, claim 1 has been amended to include a directory for associating the account holder with the unique identifier and allowing for the directory to function as a root directory that allows for real-time synchronizing content with other directories containing a plurality of unique identifier.

The best patent literature is O'Leary (US Pat. No. 6,609,113). The O'Leary reference discloses a method/system for processing internet payments. O'Leary does disclose unique identifiers and the use of the unique identifier to be associated with a payment as well as different payment networks. However, O'Leary does not disclose a root directory that includes the unique identifiers, and any real-time synchronizing content with other directories at different financial institutions. Even though real time actions are not novel, the claim specifically recites real time synchronization of a root directory with other directories that also have unique identifiers.

The best non-patent literature is the article "Directory Management Leader NetVision, Inc., Introduces Affordable Software Leasing Program." (November 22, 1999). The article discloses a public relations release by Netvision that provides for a real time directory management. The system allows for the synchronization of group account information. However, the article does not disclose a synchronization of unique identifiers at different financial institutions and also does not disclose a root directory of unique identifiers associated with a payment.

None of the references alone or in combination would find the claimed invention to be anticipated or to be obvious.
